

Less Publicized Accomplishments From Obama's First 100 Days in Office

by Baron von Funny

U.S. President Barack Obama reached the milestone of 100 days in office this week, a mark that has traditionally been used as a measuring stick for the success of a new president. And while Obama has enjoyed many noteworthy accomplishments during this period, there are a few items that slipped below the media radar...

Less Publicized Accomplishments From Obama's First 100 Days in Office

- Firmly established that bowing has no place in modern society. (Sean)
- Became the second president to dunk a basketball on the White House grounds. (The first, surprisingly, was William Howard Taft.) (Mike)
- The tax code now includes more references to nougat than ever before. (Jameson)
- Intern blowjob count holding steady at zero. (Joe)
- Fulfilling a lifelong dream, he retraced the path of Lewis and Clark with his finger on a small map. (Matt)
- Relaxed the White House dress code to include mesh half-shirts and assless chaps. (Brandon)
- Canadians now less offended at being incorrectly identified as Americans when traveling overseas. (Mike)
- Rainbows are noticeably prettier, air is sweeter and "goes down smooth." (Jameson)
- I can't be sure, but I really think this mole on my neck has gotten smaller. (Sean)
- Quietly made his Major League debut by tossing three innings of shutout ball against the Diamondbacks last Tuesday. (Joe)
- Finished the job George Washington couldn't by chopping down that damn cherry tree that Washington lied about not telling a lie about. (Matt)
- On day 31, took the opportunity to write something sarcastic on William Henry Harrison's official portrait, in the tradition of 33 presidents before him. (Jameson)
- Successfully "did it" with the First Lady in every room of the White House, including getting super freaky in the Lincoln Bedroom. (Mike)

- It didn't make much of a splash in the papers for some reason, but Hungary is a U.S. state now. (Joe)
- Vince Foster? Deader than ever! (Jameson)
- First sitting President to take down the 96oz Bad-Ass Broiler at D.C. Dan's Steak Hole and win a free "The Beef's in Here" T-shirt. (Brandon)
- Managed to successfully pretend to quit smoking. (Joe)
- The government's secret automobile design that gets 300 miles to the gallon is now 10% secreteer. (Jameson)
- Swine Flu! We meant to do that, right? (Sean)
- Little-noticed signing statement making "medical" marijuana legal in the Oval Office. (Mike)
- You think it's a coincidence when this many weeks go by without an Andy Dick arrest making the papers? (Jameson)
- White House, surrounding area now completely free of that "Cheney smell." (Joe)
- Successfully made "Bo Knows" jokes for a whole week when talking to Bo Jackson on the phone about the new dog. (Matt)
- Whenever the phone rings at dinner but when you answer there's nobody there, that's Obama. (Jameson)
- Haven't seen George W. Bush doing stupid shit on TV for months now. (Sean)
