

Best-Selling Real Estate Novels

by Baron von Funny

The Billy Joel song "Piano Man" contains the line "Now Paul is a real estate novelist," which has often caused consternation among listeners over what the hell a "real estate novelist" is. But a closer look reveals that not only is real estate novelist an actual occupation, it's also a successful one...

Best-Selling Real Estate Novels

- The Fault in Our Leaky Foundation* (Mike)
- Where the Sidewalk Ends and the Savings Begin* (Dan)
- To Kill a Mockingbird That's Lowering Neighborhood Property Values* (Brandon)
- The House of Seven Gables and a Three Car Garage* (Jameson)
- Tales of a Fourth Grade Home Seizure* (Mike)
- The Last of the Mohicans to Sell Their Land* (Dan)
- Fifty Shades of Grey Wallpaper* (Jameson)
- Alice's Adventures in Foreclosureland* (Brandon)
- Oh, the Places You'll Go Looking for Houses* (Dan)
- A Tale of Two Gated Communities* (Jameson)
- The World According to TARP* (Brandon)
- Diary of a Wimpy Real Estate Agent* (Dan)
- Gone with the Window Treatments* (Jameson)
- Harry Potter and the Moderately-Priced Starter Home* (Brandon)
- One Hundred Years of Kitchen Remodeling* (Jameson)
- Precious: Based on the Novel Push Those Points Away with 40% Down, By Sapphire* (Mike)
- The Bourne Curb Appeal* (Jameson)
- No Country for Old Homes* (Dan)
- A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Houseflipper* (Brandon)
- A Farewell to Escrow* (Jameson)

Baron von Contributors: Brandon Kruse, Dan Lee, Jameson Simmons, Mike Wagner
