

Other Reasons Americans Are Contracting More STDs Than Ever Before

by Baron von Funny

This week, the Center for Disease Control announced that the number of Americans diagnosed with chlamydia, gonorrhea or syphilis reached a record high in 2016 for the second year in a row, with more than two million cases reported. Cases of these three sexually transmitted diseases have been increasing nationally since 2014, reversing a downward trend that began in 2006. Health officials say the rates reflect decreasing condom usage, a lack of awareness about STDs among doctors and patients, and a falling number of STD clinics, but those aren't the only reasons...
